Veteran, novice Hancock politicians to take oaths

BY DENA BISNETTE

Hancock County's elected officials, including five who have never held office before and one returning after a four-year absence, will be sworn in at 9 a.m. Monday in the courtroom of the Hancock County Courthouse.

The ceremony is open to the public and will be followed by a meeting of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors.

Judge James Thomas is scheduled to administer the oaths of office.

Those officials to be sworn in for the first time include Circuit Clerk-elect Pamela Thomas Metzler, Supervisors-elect Robert Peterson and Mike Ladner, and East District Constable-elect Paul Ladner.

Justice Court Judge-elect Lee Klein, serving the west district, has held the office before but will return after a four-year absence.

Beat Two Supervisor Ronald Cuevas was sworn in on a temporary basis in August by Mississippi Supreme Court Justice J. Ruble Griffin after being appointed as interim replacement for his predecessor, A.A. Kellar, who had resigned.

Cuevas will be sworn in Monday to begin serving his first elective four-year term.

Metzler, a Bay St. Louis resident, will be taking her first political office when she becomes circuit clerk Monday but is going into the job with four years' experience as chief deputy clerk behind her.

In addition, she has served as a Justice Court clerk and is a former employee of the Hancock County Tax Assessor and Collector's office.

"I've been around the courthouse a long time," Metzler said.

"I'm excited about taking office.

It's a long road from campaigning and winning in the primary to actually taking office, and it's exciting to know that time is really here."

"Basically, I just want to keep on improving an already good office. I plan on working as hard as I possibly can," she added.

Plans for the coming year include more computerization. Computers are presently used for the circuit clerk's voter registration records and Metzler is interested in adding court records and civil lawsuits, as well as increasing the office's word processing capabilities.

"My family and I are really excited that the people have given me this opportunity to serve," she added.

Peterson, a former pipefitter from Clermont Harbor, will become the new Beat One supervisor on Monday. The job will be his first political office.

"I'm looking forward to going to work for the county. We're all willing to work hard for Hancock County and make it a better place to live," he said of himself and the other new board members, Cuevas and Ladner.

Peterson said two of the things he is particularly concerned about working on during the coming year are beachfront repair and improvement and drawing industry into the county.

"The beach has been a constant problem, and I definitely want to make an effort to attract business and industry, the types that will make more jobs in the county," he said. "I know the importance of putting people to work."

Mike Ladner, a native of Kiln now living in Bay St. Louis, will become the supervisor for Beat Five on Monday. Although this is his first elected office, he served the county for more than seven years as veteran's service officer.

"I'm looking forward to working with the citizens of District Five and all of Hancock County for the betterment of the county," Ladner said.

Although he stated that he would prefer to announce his plans for the coming year at his first board meeting, which will follow the swearing in ceremony Monday, Ladner said he and the other supervisors about to take office "have good programs in mind that will benefit all of the citizens of Hancock County."

Cuevas, who with his family owns and operates a grocery in Pearlington, has been serving Kellar's ship," Cuevas Added.

The other new elected official, Constable-elect Paul Ladner, offered no comment.

Fingerprint, ballistics checks sought on man killed by deputy

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Although law enforcement officers are convinced that a man killed on Christmas Eve by Hancock Deputy Nathan (Corky) Hoda was Eric Allen Demcheck, a fingerprint check is being made with the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"I don't think there is really any doubt that he was Demcheck but because he had other identification in his wallet it is being checked," said Hancock Sheriff Ronald Peterson.

He also said Demcheck, 38, of Pittsburg, Pa. was positively identified by his ex-wife Linda Barkschat of Houston, Texas and that Demcheck's mother in Pittsburg had claimed the body for burial.

Demcheck was shot three times by Hoda last Thursday in the parking lot of Todd's Mini Mart on Highway 603 after threatening to kill Barkschat.

Demcheck had allegedly kidnapped Barkschat earlier in Houston and had her handcuffed in the back of his van but she tried to escape while he stopped for gasoline at Todd's.

Peterson said the fingerprint check with the FBI will probably take 1-2 weeks.

The other identification in Demcheck's wallet is for a man with a number of arrests listed in the National Crime Information Center and is for a man who is five inches shorter than Demcheck.

Peterson said Harrison County authorities requested a comparison by the FBI of ballistics from Dem-check's gun with those of bullets that killed Circuit Judge Vincent Sherry and his wife, Margaret Sherry.

This is a long shot but Demcheck's gun is the same caliber as the pistol which killed the Sherrys and they just want it checked, he added.

In addition to the .22 caliber pistol equipped with a homemade silencer, authorities found a 9mm Glock automatic pistol rigged to be fired from inside an attaché case, a shotgun rigged to be fired from inside the van, a stun gun and a spear gun in Demcheck's vehicle.

Hoda, who responded to the call for assistance at Todd's with Deputy Eddie Thornton, continues on routine administrative leave with pay while the investigation is being completed by the Mississippi Highway Patrol.

Klein had previously spent 12 years as a Justice Court judge.

"I'm looking forward to getting back in the swing of it, especially to working under the new system because I feel it's a whole lot better."

MONEY GUIDE

With the new tax laws, the volatile stock market and an uncertain economy, what are the best decisions about your money in the new year? Will the country prosper in 1988?

These questions will be answered when the country's most popular economic commentator, Louis Rukeyser, speaks out on "Louis Rukeyser's 1988 Money Guide."

Mississippi ETV will present this one-hour special at 9 p.m., Wednesday, Jan. 6, when Rukeyser and his guests discuss where the best new jobs will be, what industries will be growing—or falling—and how the economy will be affected by the 1988 Presidential election.

Perniciaro resigns as supervisor under 'Pretense' conviction terms

BY DENA BISNETTE

Hancock County Beat Four Supervisor Sam J. Perniciaro Sr. has resigned.

The resignation becomes effective Monday, Jan. 4, the day the supervisor would have been sworn in for his fourth term, had he not been convicted Nov. 19 in one of the cases stemming from the Federal Bureau of Investigation's "Operation Pretense."

Perniciaro's letter of resignation was presented to the supervisors Tuesday by Board President James Travirca. Perniciaro himself did not attend the meeting.

The board accepted the resignation "with regret," Travirca said.

"It is with regret that I must advise you that as of Jan. 4, 1988, it is necessary that I resign my position from the board of supervisors as supervisor of District No. 4," the letter stated.

"I want to assure you that it has been a pleasure serving the county, and if I can in any way, at any time, do anything to assist you or the county, please feel free to contact me."

Despite being under a federal indictment handed down in July, Perniciaro had been reelected in August in a landslide first primary victory.

On Nov. 19, the 64-year-old supervisor changed his original plea of not guilty to guilty of charges including mail fraud, extortion and nine counts of bribery. He also agreed to cooperate with federal officials in a continuing investigation of the actions of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors.

At that time, Perniciaro had only a few weeks left in his current term and was allowed by a federal judge to continue until the term expired rather than submit an immediate resignation.

The decision was based on the fact that the majority of the present board of supervisors had not been reelected and that the court therefore felt it would be most fair for the new board to select Perniciaro's successor, according to Joe Sam Owen, one of the supervisor's attorneys.

The new board will have to appoint an interim supervisor to serve until a special election can be conducted in November, because state law prohibits special elections at any other time unless the governor requests an earlier vote.

Beat Two Supervisor Ronald Cuevas said at the time of Perniciaro's conviction that the board is most likely to select an interim appointee who will not run for the office later.

Perniciaro has not received a sentencing date pending the outcome of the investigation.

The plea bargaining agreement dropped some of the charges originally made against Perniciaro, but he still faces the possibility of a prison term of up to five years and a fine of up to $250,000 on the mail fraud charge and a maximum of 20 years and a $500,000 fine on extortion, although a federal prosecutor reportedly has recommended probation on the extortion penalties.

He was the first of two Hancock County supervisors indicted in "Operation Pretense" which has resulted in 50 indictments statewide.

The second was Beat Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner, who was arrested on Dec. 4 on charges similar to those against Perniciaro.

Like Perniciaro, he is accused of receiving a $500 kickback from Holiman Equipment in connection with the purchase of a pothole patcher and related items.

Ladner is also accused of accepting a similar kickback from Davis Chemical, another firm listed in the Perniciaro indictment.

TIM RYAN is the new assistant manager for South Central Bell's Gulf Coast area operations, according to Pat Santucci, district manager. Ryan succeeded Steve Jones who is now manager for South Central Bell's McComb area operation. Ryan will assist in coordinating the company's efforts to resolve problems directly related to customer service in areas including the counties of Harrison, Hancock, Jackson and south Pearl River. A lifelong resident of Bay St. Louis, Ryan is a graduate of St. Stanislaus High School and the University of Southern Mississippi where he graduated with a bachelor of science degree in business administration. His previous assignment with south Central Bell was in Bay St. Louis. Ryan and his wife, the former Jeanne Johnson of Bay St. Louis, have two sons, Brant and Stephen. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Ryan, also lifelong residents of Bay St. Louis.

Murder suspect's bond reduced

A Harrison County lawyer charged with murdering his wife Dec. 22 was released from the Hancock County jail on Monday after his bond was reduced from $100,000 to $50,000.

Circuit Judge James E. Thomas ordered the bond reduction after it was requested by Melbourne E. Joseph's attorney, Jim Rose of Gulfport, and agreed to by Hancock County prosecuting attorney John L. Genin.

Joseph, 40, of 709 Palmetto Cove, north of Pass Christian, was charged with murder after his estranged wife, Diana, 32, died in surgery.

Earlier that day, Joseph allegedly waited for her outside her apartment at 117 deMontluzin St., then rammed his Oldsmobile Toronado into her Dodge Colt, knocking it through the intersection of deMontluzin and Second Street into a telephone pole.

Police had obtained a warrant for Joseph on a charge of aggravated assault when he turned himself in at about 4 p.m. that day. The charge was upgraded to murder after Mrs. Joseph died.

The Josephs had been separated for about a month.

Constable-elect may have to work without weapons

BY DENA BISNETTE

One of Hancock County's newly elected constables may have to conduct his business without use of weapons until he has an answer to an application for a pardon on a 1974 moonshining conviction.

Constable-elect Paul P. Ladner declined comment on the matter Wednesday, but Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson said the new constable, elected to serve the county's East District, may "have problems if he can't use a weapon."

Peterson said he had been questioned about the matter by several people who were concerned about whether Ladner, as someone with a federal felony conviction, could carry a gun.

He had referred the matter to Hancock County Board of Supervisors Attorney Gerald Gex, who obtained a State Attorney General's opinion on the matter.

The opinion stated that Ladner may not carry weapons.

While only a Mississippi court's conviction would prohibit a person in Ladner's situation from running for office, he is still affected by laws prohibiting convicted felons from carrying guns and other weapons because those laws apply to convictions from any court, not just a Mississippi court.

Peterson said he understood that Ladner, who was sentenced to a $1,000 fine, five years' probation and served about a year of a three-year prison term before being released, has applied for a presidential pardon in the case.

If he receives the pardon, he can lawfully carry a gun, but Peterson said he does not know the status of the application.

The sheriff said he is concerned for the constable-elect's personal safety if he tries to carry out his duties without a gun.

"Since normally constables work alone while serving papers and warrants, he could face a hazardous situation sometimes, but if he's willing to do it that way, he has a right to do it," Peterson said.

He said he anticipates no problems for Ladner in serving civil papers, but that he could be faced with the problem of having to defend himself in some of his other duties, which according to the Mississippi Code include serving criminal papers, making arrests if necessary and matters such as riot control.

In addition, a constable can be fined if he fails to carry out his duties.

One of the factors pointed out in the opinion was that sheriffs and constables are not required to carry weapons or be eligible to carry them.

However, Peterson stated that under a new law, constables must now be certified through completion of a required training course.

The sheriff said Wednesday he does not specifically know if that course involves any firearms training, but most law enforcement training does.

He said he does not know if Ladner could complete training without first obtaining a pardon if firearms are included, and that he may not be able to continue to hold office if he can not obtain the necessary certification within a specified time after being sworn in as constable.

NEW SUPERVISORS look over some of the background material they have gathered to prepare themselves to take office Monday. From left are Beat Five Supervisor-elect Mike Ladner; Beat Two Supervisor Ronald Cuevas, who is already serving in an interim term; and Beat One Supervisor Robert Peterson. Along with incumbent Beat Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner, who was re-elected by one vote, the three will conduct their first meeting on Monday immediately following a swearing in ceremony for the county's elected officials.

would like to help Sheriff Ronald Peterson get that program going again.

"I forget what year it was we started it, but I remember that we went out and bought shovels and axes and sickles to help beautify the county," Klein said.

"I also intend to rigorously prosecute in three areas, litter laws, trespassing laws and hunting and fishing violations," the judge-elect stated.

Incumbents will also be sworn in Monday for their new terms.

Together many things can be accomplished

Many things have happened during the past year in our state and county, some were good while others not so good.

The year 1987 for all practical purposes is now history and we have to look forward to 1988.

It is hoped our state, county and city officials have learned from the experiences of previous years and 1988 will show nothing but good things for our state and community.

On the state and county level we have many new leaders and it is hoped everyone will work to help them better our state and county.

By working together many good things can be accomplished and the residents of our state and county can reap the benefits.

Our state and county leaders were elected by the majority of qualified electors at the polls.

It is realized every elected official may not have been your choice, but they were a choice of the majority.

If there is someone or a group fighting this elected official or officials for the next four years, nothing will be accomplished.

This has happened many times in our state and county and some damages caused by this attitude will never be overcome.

It is hoped everyone will work together for a better state and county.

Who writes traffic tickets on Hwy. 603?

Dec. 29, 1987
Dear Sir:

I just returned from our summer home in Bay St. Louis.

Can you tell me who is in charge of ticketing the one-eyed cars and trucks in your area?

We drove on 603 and counted eight one-eyed cars and nearly had a collision one night.

Burglary victim opts for geographic cure

Dear Editor:

I'm not one to usually write to the newspaper, but I feel that the citizens of Hancock County should be aware of what appears to be a complete lack of professionalism and concern on the part of both the Hancock County Sheriff's Office and the Waveland Police Department.

I speak from personal experience. During August of this year, my home in north Hancock County was burglarized resulting in a loss of approximately $8,500 in personal property.

Obviously this is not an uncommon occurrence as there were more than a dozen similar incidents in this area during the same period.

I have yet to receive any news about what the sheriff's office is doing, if anything, about these cases!

To make matters worse, the warehouse where I stored the few remaining belongings left to me was recently burglarized with similar results.

Now I have very few earthly

We decided to keep a count, and in three nights we counted 33 one-eyed cars and trucks.

Please let us receive a reply as to the person or persons in charge of the safety of a driver in the Bay St. Louis/Waveland area.

belongings left to me. Sadly, I have yet to hear of any effort on the part of the Waveland Police Department to solve this crime.

I realize that these incidents are of little consequence to departments who put most of their effort into DUI enforcement and misdemeanor marijuana arrests, but it is really too much to ask to at least give me a copy of the Waveland Police Department incident report on my case without charging me $3?

Since honest people can't expect their personal belongings to be safeguarded and local law enforcement efforts to be directed toward the arrest of career criminals, I have made my decision to leave the area and live where there is at least some small amount of respect given to the law-abiding citizen.

Good luck to everyone who chooses to remain here.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

JACKSON—Once again, the federal government may cause Mississippi to reform one of its archaic state governmental institutions.

The federal indictment of State Highway commissioner Bob Joiner for extorting $238,157 in kickbacks from four road contractors, along with a half dozen other offenses, is bound to bring into question the state's unique system of electing its three-member Highway Commission.

It is significant that the jumbo-size highway commissioner becomes the first elected state official in Mississippi ever to be indicted on federal public integrity charges.

The 11-count indictment against Joiner comes after some two years of speculation that the flamboyant two-term southern district commissioner was under scrutiny by the U.S. Attorney's office. The 58-year-old Joiner had won re-election to a third term this year with relative ease.

For many years, the highly political nature of the state Highway Commission has been a subject of controversy with governors or the Legislature. Mississippi is now the only state which elects its highway commissioners and in which the governor has no executive voice.

Often the commission has been the target of attempts to abolish the elective system or to give the governor some control over the commission, but none has been successful.

All the way back in the 1928-32 administration of Theodore G. Bilbo, a major goal of Bilbo was to abolish the Highway Commission as an elective body, on grounds that the commission, then elected in off-years, meddled in gubernatorial politics.

The respected Brookings Institution study on reorganization of state government made for Gov. Mike Conner in 1932 had proposed that the commission be made appointive by the governor. But that recommendation, together with others, was never carried out.

However, when the state launched its first major state highway program in 1936 under Gov. Hugh White, for a period of two years the state operated with an appointive commission. During that period, according to many observers, the state marked its greatest advance in road-building.

Gov. Bill Waller, who pushed through the $600 million four-lane highway "corridor" program in 1972, sought to reform the Highway Commission system, contending that the governor, as the state's chief executive, should have some say-so in state highway administration.

Despite considerable legislative support, Waller was unsuccessful in having two governor-appointed members added to the commission.

Gov. William Winter advocated creation of a State Department of Transportation bringing all forms of transportation under one agency, and limiting the power of the Highway Commission, but without success.

The more recent battles of Gov. Bill Allain to reform the highway administration system, including his brief but dramatic takeover of highway expenditures by executive order, are well known.

Legislative distrust of leaving large highway spending programs to the discretion of the Highway Commission has been evident for some years. Lawmakers consequently moved to put greater safeguards around the $1.6 billion 4-lane program enacted at the 1987 session to keep the program from getting bogged down in a movement to reform the highway administration.

Significantly, the last scandal involving a major official in state government was in 1976 when state Highway Director E.L. Boteler was convicted in state court for embezzling more than $100,000 in highway funds. Boteler, a former state legislator, has been noted for being a "watchdog" over financial mismanagement.

Joiner, a former mayor and insurance agent in Waynesboro, had figured in a legislative investigation back in 1968 which showed the Southern district Highway Commissioner W.H. "Shag" Pyron was funneling an inordinate amount of highway department insurance through Joiner.

Ironically, Joiner unseated Pyron in 1979 in a campaign pitched at restoring integrity to the office. Northeast Mississippi legislators, oddly enough, have been the most protective of retaining the elective highway commissioner system, although their area has fared poorly in terms of highway construction under the existing system.

In the last 20 years, two Northern district highway commissioners have been turned out of office by the voters in the wake of shennigans such as exacting expensive Christmas gifts from highway department employees and building "political bypasses" with no connecting highways.

Two military contracts $41 million

Two contracts for defense projects in Mississippi total over $41 million, Senator Thad Cochran said.

The Senator said the military contract work involved projects at Ingalls shipyard in Pascagoula and the Army Ammunition Plant in Hancock County.

The Navy has awarded a contract of $28,780,830 to Ingalls for overhaul work on the USS Richard K. Turner.

Work on the overhaul project at the Pascagoula shipyard is expected to be completed by early July 1989, the Navy said.

And, the Army has awarded an additional $12,254,078 to the Mason Chamberlain Corporation at the National Space Technology Laboratory at Bay St. Louis, for operation and maintenance of the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant.

The Army said the latest award to Mason Chamberlain is part of an overall contract totaling over $215.6 million.

We ask ourselves just where has 1987 gone. It seems like the year just flew.

To us it seems as we get older, time just moves faster.

Tonight and for the next few days there will be many people celebrating the New Year and attending parties.

It is good for everyone to have a good time on special occasions.

One of the big problems for some folks in celebrating the holidays is drinking too much and then driving.

But driving while under the influence places many other people in danger not to mention yourself.

Our Hancock County sheriff's office, Bay St. Louis and Waveland police departments are all offering a 'free taxi service' during the holidays for celebrants.

Law officers would much rather take a person who has had a little too much to drink home from a party. This is a lot easier then having to spend hours investigating and recording an accident, not to mention the prospect of possible deaths and injuries.

The telephone number for the sheriff's office is 467-5101; Bay police 467-9221; and Waveland police 467-3669.

We hope everyone will enjoy the holidays and have a very happy and prosperous New Year.

It seems there's a new type of 'game' in Hancock County—counting the number of one-headlight vehicles during a night's journey.

A pickup truck with one headlight counts for only one point, the reason is because there seems to be more of them, and an auto counts for two points, an 18-wheeler five points and a bus 10 points.

The favorite roadway for the new 'game' is dangerous Highway 603, but it is not the only place to participate in the new adventure because it can be played on just about any road in Hancock County.

We realize a person can lose a headlight to a piece of gravel on the road, as we ourselves did just a few weeks ago. The next day we replaced the headlight.

Some motorist seem to forget to have the headlights replaced and possibly need some type of a reminder to make them remember.

We are looking to the time when the new 'game' of count the one-eyed vehicles on Hancock County's roadways and highways will no longer be in existence because all vehicles will have all lights operating.

COLLIDER HOPES NOT DIMMED

State officials are placing little stock in recent reports that Mississippi is not one of the finalists for the federal Superconducting Super Collider project.

The list, reported by two newspapers, named six states that were on the list of finalists. One newspaper did report that Mississippi may be added to the list before it is officially released.

Federal officials were quick to deny the list's authority. The Department of Energy has said a list of finalists will be decided on in January. State authorities are going by that word, and assuming the recent reports were wrong.

The collider project will be a tremendous economic boost for the state where it locates. The $6 million project will provide more than 4,000 jobs and an annual budget of $270 million.

For Mississippi, the project carries a special significance.

Recently building its high technology base and gaining a reputation for technology research, the location of the super atom smasher would put Mississippi in first place in the big leagues.

Governor Bill Allain is correct in saying the collider project would turn Mississippi around overnight. It would have more impact than any single project could have in changing the focus of the state's economy.

State officials are comfortable with Mississippi's bid on the project.

If Mississippi's name is on the official list in January, it will give the state a New Year's present that will long be enjoyed.

Mississippi dropped as nuclear waste site

Mississippi's decade-long fight to keep the state from becoming a nuclear dumping ground is over, Attorney General Ed Pittman said.

The decision made by Congress before Christmas adjournment to place the first nuclear waste repository at Nevada's Yucca Mountain takes Mississippi out of the nuclear waste picture, Pittman said.

"This is a complete victory after ten years of opposition to Department of Energy consideration of Mississippi sites," he said.

The congressional action ordered an immediate stoppage of work at all other prospective sites, including Mississippi's Richmon and Cypress Creek Salt Domes in Perry County. "It also means," he said, "that the Yellow Creek site in Tishomingo County, once considered as a location for temporary storage of nuclear waste, is also out of consideration."

Pittman said that the decision would save the state at least $200,000 over the next few years in litigation costs.

"The people of Perry County and the surrounding counties are now free of the threat of having nuclear waste buried underground in the salt domes," he said.

We have said all along that salt domes are not suitable and that placement of nuclear waste there would threaten the water supply and put the people of the area in danger.

Mississippi's 1988 Pilgrimage Season offers variety

The glimpse of a petticoat beneath a satin gown, gleaming mahogany surfaces, a delicate wisp of embroidery gracing a table—images hinting at the elegance of 19th century lifestyles in the American South. Abundant examples of that era's decorative arts and splendid architecture exist in Mississippi today. During Spring Pilgrimage season thousands of visitors tour the state's historic homes and buildings, experiencing the grandeur and charm of the past century.

The 1988 season begins the weekend of March 11-12 with pilgrimages in Natchez and Yazoo City. Nine other communities or areas will host pilgrimages throughout March and April. Most pilgrimages are held over a weekend, but the length varies from two days in Port Gibson to one month in Natchez.

Pilgrimage homes throughout the state are richly furnished with period antiques. These homes were usually built by extremely wealthy families who often imported elaborate trimmings and commissioned some of the world's best architects to design their dwellings.

Architecture differs from town to town and within communities as well, making each of the tours unique. For example, Columbus and Vicksburg offer town houses and plantation mansions while Gulf Coast antebellum homes are raised to allow cool breezes to flow underneath and to protect residents from high water.

Natchez has homes which developed during three different eras before the Civil War: Spanish rule, British rule and the King Cotton period. Several hundred antebellum structures remain today with approximately 30 homes open during Spring and Fall Pilgrimage.

Although most Mississippi communities feature antebellum (pre-1860) homes during pilgrimage, some highlight tours in Yazoo City and Aberdeen, for instance. Lawrence County's pilgrimage includes rustic pioneer structures, and on the Gulf Coast modern technology is represented with a tour of the National Space Technology Laboratories in addition to garden and home tours.

Festivals, living history demonstrations, elaborate plays and pageants enhance the tours of homes in each area. Of special note is the 50th anniversary celebration of the Holly Springs' Pilgrimage, April 22-24. A barbecue, jazz band and historic play will highlight the Golden Celebration on April 23.

Prices for tours range from $6 in Yazoo City for three homes to $16 for five homes in Natchez. Most are $10 or $12. The Gulf Coast Pilgrimage is free.

Mississippi Pilgrimage towns and dates for 1988 are: Aberdeen, April 8-10; Columbus, March 31-April 10; Gulf Coast, April 4-17; Holly Springs, April 22-24; Lawrence County, April 22-24; Macon, April 7-11; Natchez, March 12-April 10 and October 8-22; Oxford, April 22-24; Port Gibson, March 26-27; Vicksburg, March 26-April 10; and Yazoo City, March 11-13 and March 18-20.

DON'T IGNORE CREDITORS
People who get into financial trouble often do the very worst thing they can by not contacting their creditors immediately and explaining why they are unable to pay.

Most creditors are willing to work with people who owe them in developing a revised payment schedule to fit the circumstances. The worst thing a person can do is ignore creditors, because a number of things will then begin to happen.

The process of collecting debts varies, considerably from one creditor to another. It will depend on the creditor's policies and accounting procedures. Some creditors take action against late payments if only a few days late. Others do not send late notices until payment is at least 30 days late.

People who get 60 days behind generally receive another request for payment. At the end of 60 days, some creditors will turn the debt over to an attorney or collection agency to collect the late payment. Some creditors have their own representatives who collect debts. If a creditor turns a person's account over to an attorney, the person can expect an additional cost in attorney fees.

After a period, if the debt has not been collected, court action by the creditor can be expected. The creditor will file a suit in court in an effort to get the court to make a person pay a bill. The court's decision is called a judgment.

If the court rules in the creditor's favor, expect wages to be garnished or assets to be taken (attached). If the court rules that wages be garnished, the creditor notifies an employer of the garnishment action and about 25 percent of wages will be sent to the creditor unless this amount would leave a person with a paycheck of less than 30 times the Federal minimum wage.

In this situation, no more can be taken than the amount of money that exceeds the Federal minimum wage. This does not apply to garnishing money for alimony or support of a dependent. Also, creditors can legally attach the assets of a checking or savings account up to the value of the court judgment. Personal property can be seized and sold.

The creditor may already have or can obtain the legal right to repossess the property. This means a person loses the item for which money was borrowed.

Frequently, the creditor sells the property for less than the amount still owed on it. If the item does not sell for enough money to pay off the loan, the creditor will file another suit for a deficiency judgment to make up the difference between what was owed and the sale price of the item. Failure to pay the amount of deficiency judgment means wages can be garnished or the creditor can seize other possessions for the amount of the judgment.

Do not ignore a suit. Contact an attorney immediately. Fail to file an answer to the suit and failure to appear in court will allow the creditor to win the suit by default. With an appearance in court, a person can possibly work out an acceptable plan with the creditor. Without an appearance in court, a person cannot defend against the creditor's claim.

LIGHTING MUST BE WELL PLANNED

Lighting does not have to be elaborate or expensive. However, it must be well planned in order to be effective and efficient. There are three main types of home lighting—general, task and accent.

The function of general lighting is to light the entire area to the degree necessary for daily activities such as conversation, eating breakfast or hanging clothes in a closet. Usually general lighting is provided by fixtures mounted on the ceiling. This enables the light to spread evenly to all parts of the room. If the ceiling is painted white or a light color, it reflects the light and distributes it around the room.

In rooms where ceiling fixtures are not appropriate, the reflective ability of a ceiling can be very important. This permits a floor or table lamp to bounce the light off the ceiling as general light.

Since bedrooms, living rooms and dining rooms do not need bright general light and since a feeling of warmth is desired, incandescent lights are often the choice. The light source should be either diffused through frosted glass hidden from direct view or reflected off the ceiling.

Another type of general light that might be used in bedrooms, living rooms and dining rooms is wall lighting. Lighted walls expand space visually, making rooms appear larger. Fluorescent lights concealed behind a shielding board produce a soft diffused light.

Incandescent fixtures may be recessed, ceiling mounted or attached to a track for general lighting. When lighting a wall behind a seating group, locate the light so that people seated there do not see the brightness of a bulb or the interior of the fixture.

The purpose of task lighting is to concentrate light on areas that require a higher intensity of light for seeing tasks such as reading or preparing food. Although task lighting can be used to supplement general lighting, it is designed to function as a visual task light and is often shielded to minimize the spreading of light. Task lights are kept from shining directly into the eyes by the use of shaded and recessed fixtures that throw a narrow beam.

Fluorescent provides good task lighting over counters in the kitchen or behind vanities in a bathroom. For other visual tasks, incandescents are often used. Incandescents have neither the shape nor bulb limitations of fluorescent and are easier to adapt to lamps, spotlights and fixtures.

The purpose of accent lighting is to draw attention to a particular feature or object in a room, such as valance lighting that spills down on draperies and brings out texture, or a small spotlight that illuminates a painting.

Accent lighting is accomplished in much the same way as task lighting, but the quality of light needed is usually much less and a light source often needs to be out of view. Incandescent fixtures are usually used for accent lighting.

Good lighting can do exciting things to a home. It can make it more livable, enjoyable and attractive. It can make a small room seem larger, give a feeling of sunlight in a basement, or create a center of interest in a room that lacks one.

The light plan for a home should take all its activities into account. It should combine general overall lighting, task lighting for special seeing tasks, and accent lighting for decorative interests. The combination of these lighting types can provide a variety of lighting for family needs and moods.

DOUG GREENWAY

Doctor, minister staging polio benefit run

A "Polio-Plus" Trans-Mississippi Run is on the calendars of Dr. Cliff Cartwright, M.D. and Doug Greenway, minister of the Boonville church of Christ.

These two Rotarians plan to run the length of Highway 90 from Alabama to the Louisiana state line, Dec. 31, 1987-Jan. 3, 1988.

"Polio Plus" is a 5 year program of the Rotary Club International to raise $120 million to immunize all the children of the world against Polio—a disease that will paralyze 3,000,000 children in the next 10 years. Three fifths of the more than 100 million children born each year in developing countries are not currently being immunized.

Each dose of polio vaccine costs 4- and 3 doses will immunize a child against polio, for life!

Thirty countries around the world are now receiving, or will receive the vaccine for their children. The oral vaccine is administered by volunteer Rotarians, and no labor cost is involved.

"We want to promote cardiovascular fitness among the people of Mississippi and to raise support for the 'Polio Plus' effort. We want to encourage people to reach across national and political boundaries and help all children of the world to grow up without being crippled by Polio.

Send tax deductible contributions to Booneville Rotary Club, George Via, Treasurer, P.O. Box 778, Booneville, MS 38829. Earmark checks for the "Trans-Mississippi Run."

ETV Brief

U.S. HEALTH CARE

The United States spends more on health care per person than any other nation in the world, yet 37 million people without health insurance cannot get basic medical care.

The way America "ration" medical care is the subject of a new documentary, "Who Lives, Who Dies," which will air at 9 p.m., Tuesday, Jan. 5, on Mississippi ETV.

Hosted by James Earl Jones, the one-hour special looks at the difficult choices posed by today's medical procedures—organ transplants that cannot be offered to everyone in need, the extraordinary care lavished on those in their final days of life and the denial of basic health care for the poor.

Art Classes

Oil painting classes are offered at the Bay St. Louis Senior Citizens Center each Monday and Wednesday, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Carl Baldenhofer, a Retired Senior Program volunteer, conducts the class. Interested seniors may secure further information by contacting the Hancock County Art Association, 255-3562 or the RSVP office, 467-9204.

Money Management

The Consumer Money Management Center serves the public by providing free financial consultations as well as informational literature and seminars for employers, educational institutions and civic and professional groups.

Information and assistance from the center relates to various aspects of personal money management including budgeting, credit repayment, insurance, and investments.

The service is sponsored by Mississippi State University and Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. To set up an appointment call Hancock County Extension Office, 467-5456.

St. Vincent de Paul Society

Waveland Conference, St. Vincent de Paul Society operates a thrift store, Waveland Civic Center, Coleman Avenue, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays. Proceeds benefit needy regardless of race or religion.

In addition, the conference operates an information and referral service for persons in need of assistance not immediately available from the society, 10 a.m. to noon Tuesdays and Thursdays at the Civic Center. 467-0703.

Seniors Center

Located in the Valena C. Jones Bldg. at 301 Old Spanish Trail in Bay St. Louis, the Center serves Hancock County citizens 60 plus years of age.

Under the Hancock County Human Resource Agency, the Center provides classes in ceramics, macramé, art, quilting, counted cross stitch, silk flowers, Christmas ornaments, framing, wood working and various other crafts. A morning snack is provided with donations from various clubs and businesses.

The Center has a contract to provide 30 home delivered meals a day to those seniors who cannot provide for themselves, and 35 meals for those who have a need for a hot, well-balanced meal daily in the cafeteria at the Center.

Transportation is provided through a contract with Coast Area Transportation for most seniors in the county to bring them into the Center, or to take them to the grocery, doctor, etc.

The contract with Methodist Senior Services provides two homemakers for about two hours a week to homebound, needy seniors to do light housekeeping or errands for them.

For more information, call the Center at 467-9292 from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Senior Citizen Jobs

Seniors Job Registry, Russell Youth Court Building, 128 Court St., Bay St. Louis offers placement services to employees and employers.

The registry is a free community service provided by National Council of Senior Citizens Senior Aides Program funded by the Department of Labor through South Mississippi Planning and Development District. The registry attempts to place seniors 55-years-old or older in hourly, daily, weekly or monthly positions, according to Gertrude Sauer, coordinator.

Call 467-7945 for additional information. Office hours are 8 a.m. to noon Mondays through Fridays.

Odom completes state death investigation course

Captain Jim Odom of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department is among some 76 county medical examiners, medical examiner investigators and deputies who have completed a recent week-long death investigation training session in Jackson.

Odom, who is warden of the Hancock County Jail, also serves as a medical examiner deputy investigator and is a licensed emergency medical technician.

The 40-hour legislatively mandated death investigation course, sponsored by the Mississippi Medical Examiner's Office and the Mississippi Crime Laboratory, both components of the Department of Public Safety, satisfies minimum training standards for county medical examiners, medical examiner investigators, and their deputies as set forth in the Coroners Reorganization Act of 1986.

To continue serving in their positions after 1988, all county medical examiners, medical examiner investigators and their deputies are required to attend the school and pass a comprehensive examination.

"All participants in this death investigation course have left with a wealth of information that will greatly benefit them and ultimately all citizens of Mississippi," said James L. Roberts Jr., commissioner of the Department of Public Safety.

"This is a definite step toward further professionalism of medical examiners and investigators in the State of Mississippi," added Wilsey Kelly, director of the Mississippi Crime Laboratory.

"We are proud and pleased to have offered this training to them," he said.

Two medical examiners, 34 medical examiner investigators, and 40 deputy medical examiner investigators successfully completed the week-long course.

The medical examiners completing the course were Dr. Dwalia South, Tippah County, and Dr. Loren D. Breland of Copiah County.

Space Shuttle main engine testing continues

A full-mission duration test of Space Shuttle Main Engine 2028 was conducted at NASA's National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County.

Initial indications in the 520-second test are that the engine performed normally, according to Dave Martin, NASA engineer.

He said routine post firing examination is underway and must be completed before the test results will be fully known.

The test was the third for Engine 2028, one of three main engines scheduled to fly on the next Shuttle Mission STS 26.

If test results are found to be within standards the engine will be accepted for the flight and shipped to Kennedy Space Center at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

The mission duration firing was preceded in early December by two shorter tests of the engine.

Acceptance testing of engines for STS 26 began in August.

A sequence of three each was successfully accomplished on Engines 2019 and 2022 clearing the way for shipping them from NSTL to Kennedy on Dec. 29 and Jan. 4, respectively.

Officials expect Engine 2028 to be ready for shipping to Kennedy Space Center in early January following a formal acceptance review of its test results.

BY KATY MC GUIRE CAIRE

"Hopplin' John and Happy New Year! In the rush of New Year's Eve plans, don't forget to have black-eyed peas and rice on hand for New Year's Day to start the year right.

"Eat black-eyed peas on New Year's Day, and you'll have good luck throughout the year," so goes the old saying in the Southland, and the custom has spread to other parts of the country as well.

Not that I'm all that superstitious—oh, no—but you may be sure that the turn of the year's clock will find me ready with the black-eyed peas!

Hopplin' John—the peas and rice combination which is said to have started in South Carolina—is a good luncheon or supper dish for a crowd on New Year's Day, or for a midnight supper on New Year's Eve—or, to me, at any other time of the year.

And you might well add cabbage to the menu, for that's another good luck food for the first day of the year—and be sure to place a dime under your plate, to ensure money in the New Year!

Some say that the name "Hopplin' John" came about because the children would jump up from the table in impatience and hop around the table; others, that the servers would all but hop in their haste as they brought the dishes to the table. Whatever the reason, here's:

HOPPLY JOHN

1 lb. dry black-eyed peas
2 qts. water (boiling)
1 medium onion, chopped

3/4 lb. bacon or salt pork, diced
2 or 3 dried hot peppers (optional)
2 Tbsp. butter or bacon fat
Pepper, salt, hot pepper sauce as desired

1 cup rice
I always soak beans or peas overnight before cooking. Next morning, drain. (You may prefer to soak only for a few hours, or not at all. If not soaking the peas, bring the peas to a boil, turn the fire off and let sit for an hour, then resume cooking.)

At any rate, in a large heavy pot start the peas to cook in the boiling water (our old family cook's theory was that cold water toughens the beans, as it does boiling beef—and she dinned this into my hard head so thoroughly then, even today I follow her way.)

Add the onions, bacon or salt pork and the seasonings, and simmer, covered, for two hours or perhaps a bit longer, until the peas soften, but not to the mushy stage, please! Add water as needed, and taste and correct the seasoning. As for the hot peppers, I crush them and add to the pot along with the other seasonings; others prefer to serve them "on the side" or not at all.

The true "Hopplin' John" adds the hot cooked rice to the peas, with all mixed together. I prefer to mound the rice on the plates and serve the peas over the rice.

And, if you don't feel like going to all that trouble of cooking the peas, just follow the path of my two eldest grandsons, Bill and Brian McGuire, and open up a couple of cans of black-eyed peas with jalapeño peppers, spice 'em up a bit more with black pepper and hot pepper sauce, and enjoy!

And, also, for a quick appetizer on the buffet table, drain a can of the peas and marinate them in olive oil and vinegar with seasonings to your taste—eat at least one, won't you, for good luck in 1988?

Coping with credit

By Linda S. Moore
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

When Christmas emotions overrule common sense shopping, there are some specific methods to work through major credit indebtedness after holiday spending mistakes.

Beverly Riggs, family economics and management specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, said Christmas has a tendency to magnify problems with credit card overuse among some individuals.

"Christmas is a time when emotions take over and we let our hearts rule our heads," Riggs said. "A merry Christmas does not necessarily mean a merry January and February when the bills start coming in."

The holidays should not be used as a time to over extend our debts. Riggs suggests a maximum of 10 to 15 percent of total income on credit obligations, including car payments but excluding house payments.

After the damage has been done and people realize they will not be able to pay the monthly bill, Riggs recommends efforts be made immediately to work out a payment plan with the creditor.

"Two of the most important factors to a creditor is that they be paid regularly and on time," the specialist said.

One method of working through large credit bills is to consolidate several different bills by taking out a bank loan to pay them off, thus providing a lower interest rate than most credit card companies.

"To consolidate credit cards can be to the advantage of consumers if they have the skill and discipline to make it work to their advantage," Riggs said. "Unfortunately many people deceive themselves in to thinking they aren't as deep in debt as they are because they've reduced their monthly payment even though they stretched it out over a longer period of time."

Riggs said many times people will not realize their total indebtedness. Since the credit bills are paid up in the company's eyes, the temptation to continue spending on the cards is often too strong. New bills can mount on top of the old ones.

A second and often more workable way to handle high credit bills is to negotiate a workable reduced payment plan with the creditor. Riggs recommends the consumer contact the creditor as soon as possible in writing and offer a monthly amount of payment that is more workable than the existing payment.

"Don't make an offer you can't follow through with," she said. "Be brief, to the point, and specify the terms when communicating with the creditor. The final decision will be up to the creditor."

The specialist said that before resorting to either consolidation of bills or reduced payments, consumers should always review the more flexible expenses to make certain they have been reduced as much as possible.

"Consumers need to remember, they didn't go into debt overnight and paying off the bills won't be any different," Riggs said. "It takes time and effort."

Every year at this time, we're barraged from all sides by "Don't drink and drive" messages. That's still the best advice — but unfortunately, not enough of us take it seriously. And, because we don't, hundreds of people will die in alcohol-related accidents during the Christmas and New Year's holiday period.

Christmas and New Year's — traditionally a time of celebration. That means there are going to be lots of parties — and a scary number of inebriated drivers on our streets and highways.

If you care about yourself, you won't drink and drive. And, if you care about your friends, you won't let them drive while under the influence.

Let's break a holiday tradition — the tradition of carnage on our highways because of an alcohol-related accident! Watch out for the other guy and — know your own limits and take care of yourself!

Let's let this tradition fade away into history!

School districts cooperating in identifying handicapped

The Hancock County and Bay St. Louis School Districts are participating in an ongoing effort to identify, locate and evaluate children birth through twenty-one years of age who are physically, mentally, communicatively or emotionally handicapped.

Programs that are available in these Districts serve students who are Educationally Handicapped, Multi-Handicapped, Emotionally Handicapped, Physically Handicapped, and Learning Disabled.

Speech/Language therapy is also available in these school districts.

Cooperative efforts with other school districts provide services for deaf/hard-of-hearing, visually impaired, and emotionally handicapped students who need services not provided in the local districts.

All information which could identify an individual child as being in need of special education services will be maintained by the Hancock County and Bay St. Louis School District and will be provided to other agencies only in accordance with the Family Rights and Privacy Act and EHA-B.

The earlier a child who is in need of special education can be identified, the greater the opportunity for providing appropriate educational experiences to meet that child's individual educational needs. Your continued assistance and cooperation in finding children who might be in need of services for the handicapped is most important.

Mississippi to host educational 'summit'

Mississippi will be the focus of the entire country's education community in November of 1990, when the Council of Chief State School Officers holds its annual business meeting in Jackson.

Announcement of the selection of Mississippi as the host for this important meeting was made at the organization's recent annual meeting in Asheville, North Carolina.

The group will meet in Indianapolis in 1988 and in Oklahoma City in 1989.

Dr. Richard Boyd, state superintendent of education, said "I am pleased that Mississippi has been selected as the site of this meeting because it apparently is the first time that the CCSO has met in this state. I am eager to show my colleagues the progress that we are making in public education in Mississippi."

The "chiefs," as they are called informally, are the superintendents or commissioners of education in the 50 states, plus the District of Columbia and the territories of American Samoa, Guam, the Northern Mariana Islands, Puerto Rico, the Trust Territory and the Virgin Islands.

"The eyes of the nation's education community will be on Jackson during that week," stated Boyd.

"This event is always covered by the nation's education press corps, and frequently announcements of major education activities are made during the Chiefs' meeting. For example, in Asheville last month the Council made public its plan for state-by-state comparisons of educational performance."

Dates for the November 1990 meeting have not yet been set.

Forrest County bond issue aids PRC

The December meeting of the Pearl River College Board of Trustees centered around the Forrest County Board of Supervisors' unanimous vote to support a $1.5 million bond issue.

President Ted J. Alexander told the board that the Forrest County support will allow the college to continue its plans to construct an allied health professions center at the PRC Forrest County Vo-Tech Center.

The allied health complex will be built on a portion of the 38 acres that the Tatum Land Management Ltd. group gave the college.

Proposed programs in the new allied health center include surgical technology, associate degree in respiratory therapy, dental hygienist, dental assisting, practical nursing, nurse's aid and medical transcriptionist.

"The cooperation we have received from the Forrest County Supervisors has been most gracious," said Dr. Alexander. "The things we have accomplished during the last month or so will mean so much to our college and supporting district for years to come."

In other action, the PRC Board: Recognized instructor Ann Morris upon her selection as Phi Theta Kappa Advisor of the Year in the Mississippi, Tennessee, Louisiana Region.

Accepted the resignation of nursing instructor Patricia Strebeck.

Approved the hiring of Ann Dungan as nursing instructor at the Poplarville campus and James Young as electronics instructor at NSTL.

Approved progress payment to United Roofing in the amount of $54,519.30 and Fred Wagner, architect, in the amount of $1,000 for the roofing project.
Reviewed the findings and recommendations in the State Audit Report for June 30, 1988.
Approved the November Claim Docket of Expenditures in the amount of $572,165.21.

Art scholarship offered to young adult

The director of Northshore Studio School in Slidell, La. announces a scholarship for young adults (ages 15-21), entitling the winner to free tuition for winter and spring sessions and $50 worth of art supplies.

The course is designed to give the student a solid foundation in drawing, color and design. Students who are thinking of majoring in art in college will be especially interested. Judging will be based on the portfolio which shows the most originality, promise and motivation in conception, pictorial organization and execution.

Portfolios will be accepted at the studio Saturday afternoons, Jan. 2 and 9 from 2-5 p.m. The winner will be announced Jan. 16 at 2 p.m. and portfolios may be picked up then.

All entrants will receive a 25 percent tuition discount for the winter session.

School brochures are available. For more information call the studio at 847-0111 or 847-0317.

BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You By Jim Henrie

Ever wonder who "invented" the post-season football bowl games? A Pasadena, Calif., businessman, James Wagner, is credited with the original idea. To promote Pasadena's Tournament of Roses affair in 1902, he got the thought of staging a post-season football game. And so, all of today's bowl games stem from Wagner's idea.

Did you know that many of today's post-season bowl games were known by different names in their early years? For instance in the first two years of the Orange Bowl, it wasn't called the Orange Bowl at all. It was known as the "Festival of Palms Game." The Gator Bowl started as the "Alligator Bowl." And the forerunner of the Cotton Bowl was called the "Dixie Classic."

What was the strangest thing that ever happened in a big-time football game? Many experts vote for an incident that happened in the 1964 Cotton Bowl game. You might remember this one. Dick Moegele of Rice was running down the field for a touchdown. But a substitute on the Alabama bench jumped off the bench, ran on to the field and tackled Moegele as he went by! Officials gave Moegele a touchdown, crediting him with a 95 yard run even though he ran only 53.
